HAS NO INTRINSIC VALUE Watches

Yet Millions of Dollars Have Been

For a thing of comparatively little intrinsic value, the America's Cup, for which the contest between the yachts, "Reliance" and "Shamrock III" is now on, appears to be attracting the attention of much of the civilized world. It is described as an old tarnished flagon of silver, not unmixed with pewter, and is neither useful, or, if experts are to be believed, ornamental. In the first place it has no bottom, being a hollow cylinder, incapable of holding liquid. Seamen consider this a disqualifying feature, and artists say so far as beauty is concerned it has none. But while all this may be true, there never was an so many millions since 1831, as has this tarnished flagon, the prize of the yachtsmen of Boston and New York bore all the expense of defending magnates entered into powerful combination to prevent Sir Thomas from
